DEEP HOLE WORK BEGINS—U.S. Army Corps of Engineers personnel, who declined to be identified or extensively explain their duties, Wednesday utilize a device to direct a boat crew in placing stakes at the deep hole offshore from Waveland. The stakes will help guide a dredge and barge-mounted dragline. The equipment, owned and operated by MCM Dredging Service, Inc. of Omaha, Neb., will be utilized in a $469,453 project to fill the underwater crater which has claimed the lives of about 25 people offshore from Buccaneer State Park and Gulfside Methodist Assembly. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

YOU'RE OUT!—Jimmy Ladner, left, cannot believe he is called out by umpire Leonard Logan for 'hesitation' in a game involving parents against Waveland Tee Ball players on opening day of Little League play Saturday. Ladner is manager of the Minor League Pirates and Logan is president of Waveland's Little League. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Port Bienville facility plans revealed

Businessman seeking bonds for $50 million shipyard

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Hancock County businessman is seeking industrial development revenue bonds to build a $50 million shipyard at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Curtis Johnson of Bay St. Louis, president of Mississippi Pumping Service, Inc. and the recently-formed Mississippi Shipyards, Inc., presented preliminary plans for the proposed facility at a Tuesday night special meeting of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

In an unusual move, the commission heard the presentation in an open meeting which allowed press coverage.

Johnson said his company is interested in building a modern shipyard in which vessel construction would be conducted inside buildings on an initial 90-acre tract lot at Port Bienville.

He reported another 90 acres would then be needed to complete the shipyard development plan.

The proposal calls for locating the yard on Lots 6 and 7 at Port Bienville—roughly located in the center of the industrial park next to a property presently leased by Gonzales Shipbuilding, Inc.

James DeBlanc, commission executive director, Wednesday reported if Johnson purchases all 180 acres, it will be the second largest Port Bienville land deal with only Borg-Warner Chemicals' 205-acre site larger.

Frank J. Basile, president of Entech (professional engineers and naval architects) of Houma, La., explained the shipyard plan his company formulated for Johnson represents the 'latest state of the art.'

The yard is designed to build vessels capable of moving through the port channel's 'limited draft access' of 12 feet and employ 1,200 'non-union' personnel in two shifts, he said.

Work in the proposed facility will include construction of new steel or aluminum vessels ranging from 35-300 feet; inland waterway boat and barge repair; offshore tug, support vessel and barge repairs; drilling rig fabrication and repair; and oil field, offshore and industrial fabrication, Basile lists in a written proposal.

There is not an existing shipyard in the United States that has the capabilities in one location of the proposed facility, he reported.

An annual payroll of $22 million is expected with gross revenues of $35 million with a profit of $14 million (net including debt service, depreciation and taxes), the Entech study reports.

Johnson said if his shipyard project proceeds as planned, construction of a steel building, covering about three acres, should begin in about four months.

He reported the building, the largest of several planned, should be constructed in a six-month period.

Johnson said the shipyard should become operational in about 1.5 years if no problems arise and continued development, based on the Entech plan, will proceed depending on cash flow generated from contracts.

Basile reported the indoor shipbuilding concept will eliminate shutdowns resulting from bad weather conditions.

He said the combined area covered by the proposed buildings is about nine acres.

All employees except about 100 technical experts will be drawn from the local labor market, Basile emphasized.

In a 'time of emergency' the shipyard could employ 3,000-4,000 with shifts 24-hours daily, he added.

Basile said third-world countries need large commercial fishing vessels and by 1986 all inland waterway barges carrying hazardous cargos will have to be 'double-skinned' to meet anti-pollution standards.

The proposed shipyard will be capable of building these boats and barges, and also could place existing barges in metal 'envelopes' to meet the 1986 standards, he explained.

Johnson said his shipyard would probably put local shipyards 'building on the sides of bayous' out of business.

The company president estimated 25-30 satellite businesses and industries will move into the Hancock area to serve his shipyard.

He said the shipyard would not compete with large vessel builders such as Avondale Shipyard in Louisiana or Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula.

The Port Bienville facility would fabricate and repair 'the smaller high-tech stuff' and boats for 'foreign navies,' Johnson reported.

He revealed many emerging nations have 'a lot of money' to spend for naval and fishing vessels.

Johnson said Avondale 'is not paying attention' to these relatively small foreign contracts and buyers from overseas 'would not walk in the mud' to view his operation as is the case with most small boat builders.

In addition, he said these countries are willing to pay little more for the shorter construction time which the company could offer.

He reported he would seek the industrial development bonds through the commission and County Board of Supervisors.

Johnson Wednesday said he did not yet know what proportion of the construction cost could be funded with the bonds.

Aaron Adams, a Waveland attorney apparently representing Johnson, at the Tuesday meeting requested bond issuance application forms and DeBlanc agreed to provide those.

Also attending the meeting with Johnson were Lucien Gex, a Waveland attorney; C.L. Davis and Curtis Burton of Mississippi Pumping; and Jim Wilson, an Entech naval architect.

House committee clears space program funding

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Some $7.2 billion in programs were cleared this week by the Rules Committee in Washington, according to Buddy Bynum, spokesman for U.S. Congressman Trent Lott.

Bynum said, "Floor action should be taken next week on the $7.2 billion in funds with some $65.1 million involving the National Space Technology Laboratories, Johnson Space Flight Center, Kennedy Flight Center, and Marshall Test Facility."

Bynum reported $477.2 million is designated for propulsion systems in the space shuttle with full power testing to be done at NSTL.

Repairing, remodeling and new construction at NSTL will involve some $3.9 million, according to the spokesman, if the allocations are granted by congress.

Some monies are also to be allocated to NOAA's land remote satellite programs.

Due to objections:

Pearl River mud waste terminal project dumped

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Plans for a waste oil and gas drilling fluids barge terminal on the East Pearl River near the former Napoleon Community have been abandoned.

Curtis Johnson of Bay St. Louis, president of Mississippi Pumping Service, Inc. and Mississippi Shipyards, Inc., Wednesday revealed he is abandoning the terminal idea due to public opposition.

The Bay businessman is presently proposing construction of a $50 million shipyard downstream at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Johnson said he will probably continue to import offshore waste oil and gas drilling fluids through the port and dump the material in two state-approved disposal pits the company operates on Firetower and Bayou LaCrosse Roads.

The fluid is pumped from barges to tank trucks which move the waste material to the pits.

Several Pearl River residents recently expressed strong opposition to the proposed terminal upstream from them, primarily fearing the facility would cause irreparable environmental damage along the Pearl.

The company president explained he abandoned the terminal idea because he wants to help, not hurt the county and its residents.

A second public hearing regarding a change to the Coast Wetland Use Plan to allow construction of the proposed terminal was to be set by the State Wildlife Conservation Commission.

Several Pearl River residents appeared at the commission's first public hearing in Jackson several months ago and a Hancock County Bureau of Marine Resources hearing to oppose the proposed terminal which was to be located in the National Space Technology Laboratories Acoustic Buffer Zone.

Mississippi Pumping presently leases property at the Port Bienville turning basin to unload the barges.

Eminent domain overruled for power line construction

A Pearl River County Special Court of Eminent Domain ruled Wednesday Mississippi Power Company cannot use the power of eminent domain to build a 77-mile power line now under construction through Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties.

Circuit Judge Michael Eubanks ruled that Mississippi Power Company could not use eminent domain—the legal right to use people's property against their wishes—for an interstate project such as the power line, said an elated Thomas Tyner, attorney for the landowners.

Mississippi Power wants to build a 500,000-volt power line from Plant Daniel in Jackson County to the Louisiana border. The line will be used to sell power from Mississippi Power and three other utilities to a Texas-based power company.

Tyner said the judge also ruled that the power line did not serve "the use and needs" of Mississippi residents, which is necessary to use eminent domain.

Mississippi Power Company spokesman John Hutchinson said he could not comment until he heard of the decision from the company's attorneys.

Tyner said he planned to ask Circuit Judge James Thomas to uphold a similar suit filed by a Gulfport landowner.

Because the power line is for an interstate transaction, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission might have power to grant eminent domain, Tyner said Eubanks ruled.

However, Mississippi Power has not met FERC requirements either, Tyner said.

Mississippi Power can continue to build the power line as long as the company does not use the power of eminent domain, Tyner said.

Both sides have said they expected Eubanks' decision to be appealed to the state Supreme Court regardless of which side won.

Another challenge to the power line is pending in Hinds County Chancery Court.

ETV Brief

FOLK MUSIC

America's popular folk music of the 1950s—a musical era marked by McCarthyism, blacklists and political stigmas for some groups—is recalled in two special public TV programs, highlighting the timeless, classic tunes and the musicians who created them.

"The Weavers: Wasn't That a Time" can be seen at 9 p.m., Saturday, April 23, followed immediately by "Together in Concert: Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie" at approximately 10:15 p.m., on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Many considered the Weavers the most influential musical group in the 1950s.

Pete Seeger, the late Lee Hays, Ronnie Gilbert and Fred Hellerman wrote such classic folk music as "The Hammer Song" ("If I had a hammer..."), "Good Night, Irene," "On Top of Old Smokey" and "Kisses Sweeter than Wine."

Often their songs had political overtones. The Weavers originally formed to play for labor unions. For that reason, their 1950s spotlight went dark.

They were blacklisted at the height of the McCarthy Era, just as NBC was in negotiation with them for their own television series. The Weavers were never able to regain their popularity.

AMERICAN DREAM SATURATED

The ever tenaciously stubborn American dream spun dizzily along with the raging current of Ten Mile Creek southwest of Columbia, Mississippi, April 6—but in the green clad hills of the New Hope community the bubble didn't burst in the face of nature's most capricious caper in recorded history.

Instead, New Hope's rural citizens are drying out their homes and possessions that remain along the banks of the normally placid little "swimmin' hole" type of stream, and others are living with relatives and friends as the cleanup operation goes on and substitute housing is sought for those whose homes were totally demolished.

It had never happened before—the rare combination of weather factors that this spring posed for this community. First, there was an uncommon amount of spring rain with the ground-water stage being set with a three-inch rain on April 5 which thoroughly saturated the ground and brought all streams and ponds to the tops of their banks.

Then it started—and continued—and continued—on Wednesday until a record breaking 14 inches of rain was emptied from the ominous clouds that day, and Ten Mile Creek received unprecedented volumes of water from all directions as it descended from the hills of southwest Marion County and plunged toward the community of Cheraw where it normally goes beneath Highway 35 and the Foxworth to Bogalusa railroad trestle to spill into the Pearl River.

Harry and Fleeda Slocum, their hair white as badges of longevity, stood at the window of their modest white-painted cottage only a short distance from the creek.

They munched on tomato sandwiches and cheese as they gazed out on the phenomena that was being acted out on the watery scene outside their window.

Suddenly water raced around the front of the house and things got wobbly. Then someone was at the door and they were mounted one by one on the strong young shoulders of Darron Slocum, a relative, to be carried to safety as their cottage began to settle into a hole being scoured out by the raging stream.

Within sight was New Hope Baptist Church, a half million dollar rural church with over 500 active members. The beautiful brick church complex with its soaring steeple, a separate chapel, a brick pastor's home, a brick home for its minister of music, and a handsome log hut on the banks of the stream for Royal Ambassador functions—was the third building under the same charter at that site. But when it was built the members built up the lot 30 inches above the previous high water mark, then added fill dirt within the foundation before building the floor even higher.

Ten Mile Creek, that day however was no respecter of persons—not deity. It surged up to the window sills outside and coursed through the buildings, bringing in a layer of mud and sand. It deposited a mass of choir robes in the shrubbery and ruined the new organ.

During the onslaught of water, music minister David Deweese, his wife Mona, and their baby were bracing against the current and trying to get out of the house to higher ground. When one stumped David lost his grip on the baby but caught the infant in mid-air to save it from the raging water.

Meanwhile at the parsonage some boys had become trapped inside the house as the current surged in the open door. The house began to fill with water and a boy in desperation opened a window which directed the water through it and blew out the wall. A human chain of men then withdrew the boys from the house.

Downstream in the Pounds settlement Mr. and Mrs. Ott Pounds had abandoned their frame house and their grandson, Sherman, was helping gather up belongings in a nearby house. As he looked out of a window he saw his grandparents' house float off its foundation and head into the woods. Under the force of the current the house scraped bark from a massive moss-hung oak tree as it set off on a voyage through the woods along the creek. As Sherman watched, the house bowled over a few young trees before breaking up and disappearing before his eyes.

When the water receded the Pounds recovered a few clothes, a shotgun and some jars of coins from the woods. Except for snagged fragments of the house and its furnishings, all was gone for the elderly Pounds.

Across the road on higher ground two other houses survived the current. Earl and Carolyn Clark's house remained intact but the swirling of furniture around inside the house demolished those furnishings.

Next door, Charles and Lorraine Pounds returned to their home to clean it and try to get things in working order. They were plagued with electrical shorts. They cooked a meal at the house on Sunday before leaving for their temporary quarters. Sunday night the house burned to the ground.

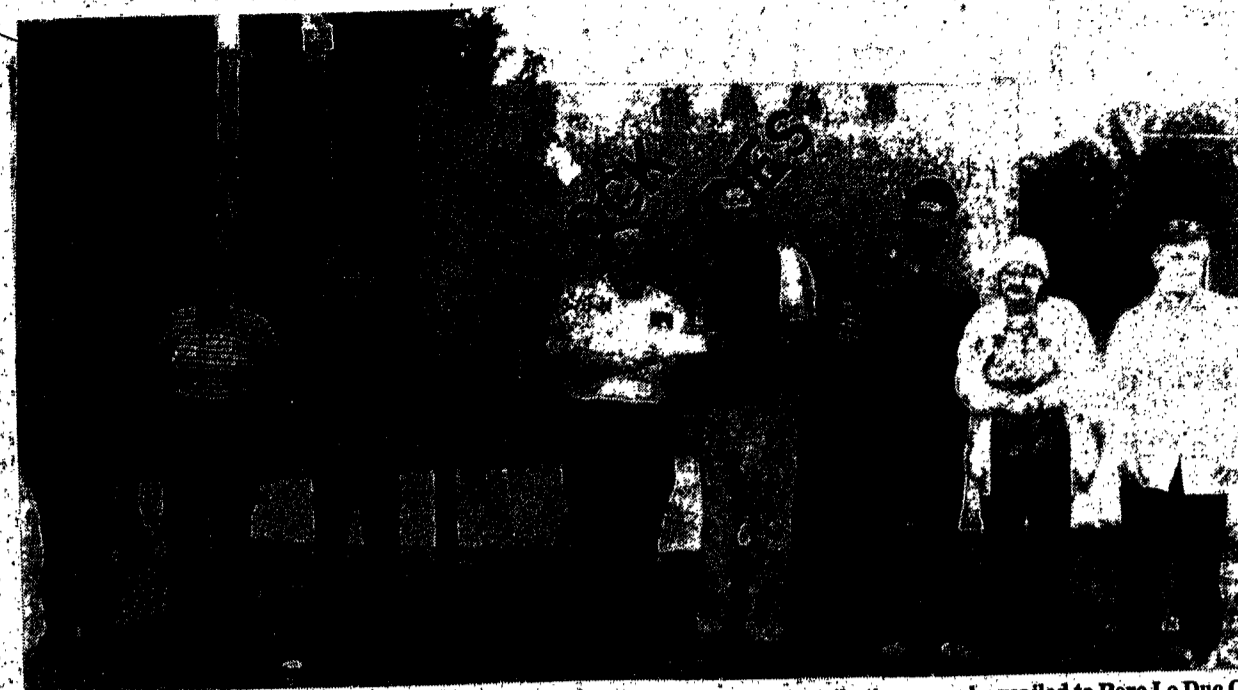

Nearby, the fine two-story home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Evans, with its backyard on Ten Mile Creek, suffered flooding and a collapsed back wall baring the home's contents to the stream.

That's a fraction of the bad news. The good news is that the American dream of home ownership and independence hasn't burst in New Hope. People there are cooperating and helping one another clean up and survive the disaster.

Congressman Wayne Dowdy has visited the area twice, along with federal disaster inspectors, representatives of the Small Business Administration, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Red Cross, Mississippi Highway Patrol and others.

At New Hope Baptist Church members have decided they can and will handle their restoration problems themselves, according to one of their deacons, Everett Stringer, a dairyman who lives in the hills above the disaster but who has been working around the clock to aid his kinsfolk and neighbors.

The beleaguered bubble is a tough one though, for only one homeowner along Ten Mile Creek had a flood insurance policy.

Daylight Savings Time will again go into effect Saturday night.

This will mean setting our clocks one hour ahead when we retire on Saturday night.

We still remember making a goof on the time change several years ago, but now go on the spring forward and fall backward theory.

There are many people who like the time changes, and still others who think it should remain the same throughout the year.

No matter which time schedule is used, there are still only so many hours in a day.

We hope all church goers will get there on time Sunday.

At last! The 'deep hole' is being filled off the beach near Buccaneer State Park.

We are in hopes this will be a permanent repair to the area which has caused so many drowning deaths in recent years.

We know a lot of our elected officials as well as the public have been trying for years to have something done to eliminate the 'deep hole.'

We want to say thank you to everyone for continued efforts over the years.

It is hard for us to realize summer is almost here as the cool weather remains.

Everyone seems to be talking about the weather, how it is cool and rains so often this year.

Maybe summer will come all at once and give us something else to talk about.

A meeting is scheduled for the concerned residents of Pearlington at the Community Center on Friday night to discuss emergency plans in case of a disaster.

The residents of Pearlington have been the victims of several disasters in recent years, and are concerned about their well being.

We hope all of the citizens will attend this important meeting where concrete plans are to be discussed.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Mississippi Economic Council

ANNUAL MEETING

Mississippi politics—specifically the politics of the 1983 governor's race—will be on the agenda next week when the Mississippi Economic Council holds its annual meeting.

Candidates in the governor's race have been invited to discuss their candidacies and how they would improve Mississippi if elected governor. The candidates will be questioned by a panel of state journalists.

The Annual Meeting is scheduled for April 7 at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson. Gubernatorial candidates will meet with the MEC membership at 2:30 p.m.

"We look forward to the opportunity for MEC members to meet face to face with the candidates," said Jolly McCarty, Pascagoula banker who is chairman of the Annual Meeting Committee. "We will elect the state's leadership for the next four years, and this meeting with the candidates is a first step toward making this decision," he said.

Candidates who have indicated plans to participate in the forum are State Attorney General Bill Allain, former Lieutenant Governor Evelyn Gandy, Secretary of State Ed Pittman, and Delta businessman Mike Sturdivant.

Journalists who will question the candidates are television newsmen Bert Case, WLBT-TV in Jackson; Charles Duggan, editor of The McComb Enterprise-Journal; and Lloyd Gray, managing editor of The Sun and The Daily Herald on the Gulf Coast.

In addition to the governor's candidate forum, Council members will hear a report from ABC News "Nightline" anchor Ted Koppel during the luncheon session. A debate on school consolidation is scheduled for the morning session.

MEC is the state's chamber of commerce and is the largest association of business and professional leaders in Mississippi.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong.
Trent Lott

By CONGRESSMEN TRENT LOTT 5th District, Mississippi AGRICULTURE AT A CROSSROADS

John Block, the secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has a positive attitude when it comes to the future of the American farmer.

Maybe his West Point education, his service as director of agriculture for the State of Illinois or his experience as a farmer himself make him an optimist. But he believes problems can be solved and, since taking office in 1981, he has worked in that direction.

Secretary Block recognizes that government spending, interest rates, grain embargoes, world-wide recession and, of course, the weather all make agriculture the risky business it can be. In a way, the American farmer is going through a transformation process.

With new agricultural initiatives such as the "payment-in-kind" program and heightened emphasis on new export markets, I think agriculture will emerge as an even stronger part of the American economy.

A few days ago, Secretary Block appeared as my guest on a weekly television program which is produced in Washington and aired by WKRG-TV in Bay St. Louis. One of our topics was the federal government's role in agriculture.

I know farmers are having especially difficult time right now, but I don't think they are looking to the federal government for a bailout.

better role for the government would be to provide clear direction and incentives to farmers, enabling them to solve problems they face.

An innovative effort in that connection has been the payment-in-kind program, commonly called the PIK program. The response has been tremendous to this logical way of cutting down on huge surplus crops.

As Secretary Block said, U.S. stocks of some crops could not be sold because of a weak world market and other conditions, meaning that these stored stocks were bringing down the price of new crops. The PIK program provides some of the stored stock to a farmer who, in turn, doesn't produce as much crop.

The end result should be a reduction in the amount of grain in storage and a more balanced practice of supply and demand.

I hope we also see a new emphasis on marketing of U.S. products in foreign countries. Many of our country's export problems were caused by embargoes, which were disastrous.

President Reagan, of course, lifted the grain embargo and began to reestablish our country's reliability as a food supplier. We need to take advantage of the new markets for our agricultural products in countries like China, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and elsewhere.

I agree with the secretary that innovative leadership and economic recovery in general can help to restore stability to the business of farming in America.

CONSUMER REPORT

A Service of the Consumer Protection Division of the Office of Bill Allain, Attorney General
P.O. Box 220, Jackson, MS 39205 (601) 354-7130

FLOOD AND TORNADO VICTIM ALERT

Attorney General Bill Allain has warned flood and tornado victims in Mississippi to be wary of wandering home repair contractors who follow disasters for profit. "What appears to be fast and cheap repair work often turns out inferior or expensive. These so-called contractors often work on advance pay basis and have no intention of doing quality work. Many times the work is unfinished or never started."

Never sign any contract containing blank spaces.

According to Allain, Mississippians can guard against contractor problems by following these suggestions:

1. Check the reputation of a contractor with the Better Business Bureau of the city, building and trade associations, city building permit departments, and friends familiar with the contractor.

2. Get the names and addresses of several contractors. An effective approach is to ask friends and neighbors who have previously hired a contractor.

It is risky to deal with an unfamiliar company or individual.

3. Get a firm, written estimate with a specific description of the work to be done, the type and quality of materials to be used, and include the total cost of the job. Never hire a contractor who has not come to the house to appraise the damage.

4. Ask for a written contract based on his estimate. Read the contract carefully. Have an attorney or trustworthy person review the contract before you sign. Be certain that the contract includes: the name, address, and phone number of the contractor, a complete description of the work, a specific description of the materials to be used, a provision requiring your written approval for any changes in the agreed-upon plans and specifications, a guarantee containing clearly stated terms that covers all promised items, a provision setting forth the total cost of the work and the specific terms of payment for materials and labor. The contract must include the signature of the contractor.

Never sign any contract containing blank spaces.

5. Never agree to a contract calling for substantial payments on the total amount before work is begun unless there is a legitimate reason known to you. Try to arrange payments in installments as portions of the work are satisfactorily completed.

6. Never rely on oral guarantees. If a guarantee is not written, it is generally worthless.

New city ordinances ban illegal cable tv connections

By JUNE M. MEYER
The Bay St. Louis City Council adopted an ordinance stating it is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to make any unauthorized connection with any co-axial cable or wire used for transmitting television signals.

The ordinance, passed at Tuesday's council meeting, also states that any person violating the ordinance will be guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined up to $500. Each additional day's violation of the ordinance is considered a separate offense.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen passed a similar ordinance earlier this month.

The ordinances, requested by Hancock Community Cable, Inc., are designed to provide penalties for each day of violation, a provision that could result in some substantial fines.

Local CATV manager Jake Jacob, before Bay St. Louis council, Tuesday, said several short falls resulted from such connections, other than any direct loss to his company.

"The city loses its share of revenues, the balance of subscribers have to pay the freight, and as most illegal connections are poorly executed

"downstream" viewers can — and generally do — suffer from a deteriorated picture," Jacob allowed.

He added, "Illegal connections are not as great a problem here as in some places but we do know of existing cases of theft of service, and prosecution of these will be undertaken as soon as the ordinances become effective."

"We hope by the provision of this advanced notice such action will not be necessary and these hook-ups will cease to be. If they remain, we may elect to monitor them for a period of time and then bring suit under the daily offense provision."

The ordinances, in part, state it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to take down, remove, injure, or obstruct, or make any unauthorized connection with any co-axial cable or wire used for the transmission of television signals, whether video or audio, or any part thereof, not owned by said person, firm or corporation.

The penalties cited for violation, by any person, firm, or corporation, upon being proved guilty of a misdemeanor, are a fine of not less than one dollar nor more than $500 dollars... but, the ordinance adds: "...and each day's violation shall constitute a separate offense."

Other, more serious consequences, can occur as the result of persons trying to illegally connect to cable television equipment. "Certain sections of our cable carry their own power, varying in strength with requirement and position in relation to the introduction of such voltage."

"Persons tampering with equipment may receive a jolt from this power which directly or indirectly can cause injury."

"The ordinances therefore are designed to make persons think twice before they expose themselves to this additional danger," Jacob concluded.

In other business, a bid of $1,150 from Pest Control Services was accepted for the housing rehabilitation assistance program.

Bids were opened on the housing demolition and taken into advisement.

Council requested a proposal for estimated cost and construction be presented by James Chiniche, engineer, on the Ulman Avenue area flooding. Council asked that he include a study and design phase and give possible solutions to the problem.

Also on Tuesday, on the recommendation of Bill Johnson, public works director, and Joseph Gex, city attorney, a bid was accepted by council for sewer repairs from Don White, General Contractor for $21,500.

The council approved the opening of a taxicab company which will be known as Bay Cab Co. The one car company owned and operated by Wallace Cornell will serve Bay St. Louis, Waveland, and Diamondhead.

Russell J. Elliott
Announces for Hancock County Board of Supervisor District Five

In announcing my candidacy for the OFFICE OF HANCOCK COUNTY DISTRICT FIVE SUPERVISOR, please know that I am very desirous of serving you and Hancock County. I know I can assist for the good of the area.

Except for credibility, a long resume of my past endeavors are just history. We should be more concerned with the PLANNING and PROGRAMMING of the FUTURE FOR THE MAXIMUM BENEFITS OF TOMORROW.

To evaluate RUSSELL J. ELLIOTT as a candidate, information is available. New Citizens and Younger New Voters, may I humbly request that you inquire of me? The responses will reveal a PROVEN RECORD OF HONESTY, INTEGRITY, AND PROGRESSIVE SERVICE TO HANCOCK COUNTY.

Ever since service in World War II, my life in Hancock County has always been public. Am married to the former Marion Orte. We boast three children and six grandchildren. I have been active in Veteran, Civic, Political and Community activities. Was elected and served as Supervisor of District 5, also serving as President.

In this announcement I will touch on only a few issues. Throughout the campaign, in following articles and public meetings, I will delve into other Hancock County Government functions.

I WILL exert every effort to correct the tragic death trap of traffic on Highway 603 through the State Highway Department. Surely with enough consolidated pressures to the powers that control the State's road systems, this will be made safe by four lanes.

I AM NOT a "fence rider" and AM CAPABLE of making a decision.

A Supervisor should be interested in and available to the citizens of his County. He should seek their input into the operation of the County. For this I WILL FORM an advisory committee, comprised of citizens from each section and subdivision, to personally discuss the needs and desires of that area. They would be informed of County funding and budgeting, and requested to assist in programming for the correction of a bad situation, improving fair conditions and motivate new progressive actions.

CONSOLIDATION OF COUNTY EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES, along with having detailed inventories, proper maintenance, scheduling and pooling for larger projects of these expensive County investments, WILL SAVE MANY TAX DOLLARS.

A CENTRAL MECHANIC AND MACHINE GARAGE, with well trained and skilled personnel to properly maintain County equipment WILL BE A SAVINGS. This facility will also be available to other County and City entities for maintenance such as School Buses, Sheriff's cars, Fire Departments and etc. These units are also under your tax dollar. INDIVIDUAL MAINTENANCE IS EXPENSIVE AND WASTEFUL.

THE BEACH ROAD AND ITS SAND BEACHES ARE A DISGRACE. I will immediately embark upon a program for funding to replace our beach and repair the beach road. It is not fair to our citizens nor our visitors to have their vehicles damaged in traveling this unsafe road in their efforts to reach their homes, businesses, schools, Buccaneer Park or our seafood industries.

Supervisors are responsible for the funding and budgeting of all County entities. I WILL work with all other Supervisors, with all departments of County facilities and services, to assist them. Jails, Hospitals, Ports and Harbors, Marinas, Schools and others are all part of a Supervisor's duties. A Supervisor should never excuse himself of this responsibility simply by appointing a representative to these commissions. He should continually monitor all of their actions and assist when needed.

I WILL COORDINATE with our Cities, Unincorporated communities, Subdivisions, Investors, Developers, NSIL and Industries, assisting them when requested. All of the above and others, as private businesses, bring tax dollars into the County and help to improve this area.

I WILL BE AVAILABLE to our farmers and cattlemen. This has been a very productive economy in Hancock County, but today it is very depressed and needs all the support an elected Official can give.

There are many avenues of upgrading Hancock County, but this will not happen by itself. I am not attempting to make you believe this can be accomplished by magic. It will take detailed planning, conscientious efforts and hard work.

Some of these improvements can only be accomplished with help of Our State and Federal Government, but unless our story for assistance is brought to the proper channels, this help will go elsewhere. I HAVE THE ABILITY to properly present Hancock County's Story and open doors so that Hancock County will receive its just share.

I will be happy to meet with you personally, your group, and/or at sponsored forums to discuss any phase of my candidacy. I know HANCOCK County has the opportunity to progress, and we should not let this happen haphazardly. NOW IS THE PRIME TIME to plan, program and mold the future of Hancock County with definite actions to acquire the utmost for the good of all citizens and Our County.

After you have evaluated my qualifications and feel that I can best serve you, will you please not only vote for me, but also help me and support my Candidacy for Supervisorship of Hancock County District Five.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR PATIENCE. I HUMBLY REQUEST THAT YOU DO GIVE MY CANDIDACY YOUR SINCERE CONSIDERATION.

RUSSELL J. ELLIOTT
CANDIDATE SUPERVISOR DISTRICT 5

Security earns record profit

H.C. Bailey Jr., president of Security Savings, reports the Jackson-based savings and loan has achieved another year of record results, statewide and nationally.

Security Savings achieved a profit of $601,427 on a consolidated basis.

This was an all time record for Security Savings and equaled a 1.1 percent return on average assets of $81,194,414.

This record, for a second year in a row, placed Security Savings number one in Mississippi in earnings as a return on average assets, he pointed out.

From all indications, it placed Security Savings in the top 5 percent nationally in return on average assets, Bailey added.

Security Savings' capital increased to over $4.4 million. This capital continues to be more than double the amount required of Security Savings by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The company's profits equaled a 19.9 percent return on capital. Here again, this capital ratio and the return on capital is among the highest in the State of Mississippi and nationally.

"We have been able to accomplish this success because of support from our customers and through the diversification of our investments," Bailey said.

"Security Savings, and its subsidiaries, are involved in most of the traditional savings and loan areas, but, in addition, we are serving our customers in many non-traditional ways. We are ac-

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: Does my employer have the right to discipline me for trying to promote better working or safety conditions?

A: Yes, in certain circumstances. While there is no state law in Mississippi that would prevent an employer from disciplining any worker who did this, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), a Federal agency may be willing to do so.

The commonly-held notion that the NLRB only protects the rights of unionized workers, or those trying to unionize, is wrong.

Some common examples of protected concerted activities are: (a) lodging complaints about safety or other workplace conditions; (b) protesting the actions of supervisors, including the discharge or discipline of fellow workers; (c) protesting salary, benefits or production policies.

A worker may file, and the NLRB will consider, an "unfair labor practice charge" as long as these conditions are met: (a) the employee is subject to NLRB jurisdiction (government employers, are excluded, as well as those subject to the Railway Labor Act, and the NLRB has dollars volume limits which exclude smaller employers); (b) the employer is a business.

than $500,000 annual gross volume of business; (b) the employee is covered by the National Labor Relations Act (farm workers, domestic servants, children and spouses of employers, supervisors, managers, and persons working for employers not covered by the NLRA are the most common exclusions); and, (c) the charge is filed within six months of the alleged unfair labor practice.

If the NLRB determines, after investigation, that the charge has merit and if a voluntary settlement is not reached, an unfair labor practice complaint will be filed against the employer by the NLRB Regional Director's Office.

This will be followed by an administrative "trial" in which the employer is the defendant and attorneys from the Regional Director's Office represent the employee's interests.

If the unfair labor practice charge is sustained, the employer may be required to re-hire the discharged worker and pay back wages.

Employees living in southern Mississippi would be expected to file unfair labor practice charges with the NLRB Region 18 office located in New Orleans.

Those living in northern Mississippi would file such charges with the NLRB Region 36 Office in Memphis.

Q: I am a director of ABC Corp., a family owned corporation. What are my responsibilities?

A: A director of a corporation whether it is large or family owned, has an obligation to the corporation and its shareholders to manage the affairs of the corporation as a reasonably prudent person would manage his or her own affairs.

One aspect of this broad duty is that a director has a duty to attend board meetings and exercise reasonable effort to understand the corporation's business and the issue which must be determined by the directors.

If you attend most meetings of ABC's directors and use reasonable care to become informed on the resolutions presented to the board, you will not be responsible for honest mistakes of business judgment.

Q: What are the rights of a customer whose bank returns his check to a store unpaid?

A: Unless there is a reason for not honoring a check, such as lack of sufficient funds in the account, a bank is responsible to its customer for wrongfully refusing to pay a check. The bank is liable to the customer for the amount of the check, as well as for any damages that might have been caused by the bank's actions. For example, if the customer had to pay additional charges to the store because of the returned check, the bank may be responsible for those charges.

Funding to be requested for preschool program

The State Department of Education has requested approval from the U.S. Department of Education for a draft plan funding programs for preschool handicapped children, ages 3-5. These programs operate under the Preschool Incentive Grant, which is a part of the Education of All Handicapped Children Act (Public Law 94-142).

In an effort to get public comment on the proposal, the SDE has mailed copies of the plan to local school superintendents, heads of private schools having special education programs, presidents of voluntary organizations for handicapped children, chairmen of screening teams and heads of state agencies serving handicapped children. All recipients have been asked to make these copies available for public review. Comments will be received until May 10, when the plan will be finalized and submitted to the U.S. Department of Education.

Although exact allocations have not been made, Department officials estimate approval of the plan would release $130,000 in federal funds for the 1983-84 school year. This is approximately $100 for each preschool handicapped child being served in Mississippi's public schools. These funds, except for a 5 percent administration cost, would flow through the SDE directly to local school districts, based on the December 1982 child count. In the previous six years, these funds have been available for distribution to local school districts on a competitive basis. This new plan would simplify the procedure for requesting funds and would distribute money on a per-child basis.

USM to hold a spring briefing on education

A Spring Briefing conducted by the University of Southern Mississippi on the Gulf Coast will focus on a number of key issues facing higher education in Mississippi.

On the Gulf Coast the Briefing will be held at the Royal d'Iberville Hotel in Biloxi Friday.

"We feel it is important for individuals in the secondary school system, junior colleges as well as parents to be fully aware of these issues from a USM perspective as they relate to and impact currently-enrolled and future students," said Dr. Hugh Fruge, assistant vice president for academic affairs at USM.

Issues to be discussed at the briefings include: Junior College Transfer Standards for 1984; High School Prerequisite and Admission Standards for 1986; Leadership Roles; Centers of Excellence; Academic Programs Review; Teacher Education Admission Standards and an overview of academics at USM.

The briefing is open and USM officials welcome anyone interested in these topics to attend. There is no registration fee.

Registration will be at 9:30 a.m. and the session will begin at 10 a.m. Plans call for the briefing to be followed by a sharing session, ending around noon.

"We will be available as long as people have questions, either in the session or to discuss with USM personnel following the formal part of the meeting," Fruge said.

SUMMER COMFORT

By MARTY CHAMBERS MS.
Old Wives' Tale No. 138:
Your long-haired dog will be just as cool with his full coat as without—it acts as insulation from the heat. Simply not true.

Whether you have a mutt or pure-bred dog, there are beaucoup advantages to a summer cut for your pet.

1) Your dog will be cooler. This is especially important for older dogs, and many vets recommend summer haircuts for dogs with heart trouble.

2) If yours is the lucky dog who spends a lot of time indoors with you, he will stay much cleaner if there is less hair to hold dirt and will be easier to bathe.

3) If your dog is badly tangled, the mats pull on his skin with every step and with almost every body-movement. Often such a dog has sores, which are sometimes infected, underneath the mats.

Also, the mats may form a physical barrier over the armpits.

It is truly cruel to permit a dog to stay in a badly-matted condition; shaving is a must—it is too painful to a dog to pull for hours on skin already sore in an attempt to work out the tangles.

A haircut in such a case usually results in a marked difference in a dog's behavior—where before he was sluggish, now he will be frisky, or comparatively so.

4) Fleas and ticks are more easily controlled if your dog's hair is short enough to see these parasites in the first place, short enough to let flea and tick sprays and powders penetrate to the skin. Also, it is vastly easier to dip or flea-shampoo a dog with short hair.

5) Shaving or trimming your dog may lead to the discovery of a problem you didn't know existed, such as an underweight or overweight condition, the presence of suspicious lumps under the skin, the presence of fleas or ticks, or the revelation that they are much more numerous than you imagined, and various skin problems.

In the case of some skin problems, vets often recommend shaving, because it enables good aeration of the skin and facilitates administration of topical medication.

About sunburn, a word of caution. Dogs have very sensitive skin, more so than human beings. Many dogs have such thick coats that the skin is still well-protected even if the hair is shaved very short, but thin-coated dogs cut very close must be protected from sunburn.

ASCS NEWS

FALL-SEEDING CROPS

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service recently closed the sign-up period for the 1983 wheat, feed grain, upland cotton and rice programs. Farmers will now be preparing to report their crop acres to the agency.

"Pearl River and Hancock County farmers have until May 1 to report the acres and intended uses of their wheat, oats, barley, rye and other small grains to our office," said Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Small grain crops which are not reported by the deadline will be ineligible for program benefits.

He said some farmers reported their small grains when they signed up for the 1983 acreage reduction and land diversion programs, and some reported other spring-seeded crops.

ASCs randomly checks farms to verify that the acreage reports are accurate and also provides aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields. The acreage reports are used to determine compliance with farm programs and also serve as a basis for the 1984 program base acres for farms.

To be eligible for price support loans, target prices and commodities under the payment-in-kind program, farmers who participate in the 1983 programs are required to report the actual planted acreage. Farmers who did not sign up for the programs could benefit also by reporting the planted acres because the reported 1983 acreage may be used in establishing the 1984 base acres.

Farmers who have not reported their fall-seeded crops are urged to do so by May 1. The local ASCS office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

HGH trustees renew management contract

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The trustees of Hancock General Hospital renewed their management contract with the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) for three years in action Tuesday night.

The contract's rate will be the same as the current contract which runs through August 31, 1983, according to Bill Williams, HCA district controller from Atlanta.

In other actions, trustees discussed roof conditions, and the fact that the warranty was about to expire.

Bobby Baxter said, "We have had troubles with the roof nine months after it was installed. We had to replaster some rooms. The person doing the plastering said it was caused by roof leaks."

"I was on the roof myself yesterday, it is full of sores, we are in serious trouble. I do not think we should make light of it," Baxter added.

The trustee continued, "We got a bum deal from the time the roof was installed in 1973. Right now on the Pepperdine Wing, there is a dip in the roof which holds water, we should do something before the warranty expires."

Phil Langston, HGH administrator, reported the roof did not leak during the recent rain, but had done so the previous rain.

During a discussion, mention was made that the warranty by GAF, manufacturer of the roof, states the roof would be "water tight."

Robert Genin, board attorney, suggested writing a letter to GAF to see if they would extend the warranty in keeping the roof "water tight" for some additional time "since we have had so many problems."

Genin stated, "If this does not work, we may be able to look at other options."

"Just consider the thousands of dollars we have spent on pasturing over the years because of the leaking roof," Genin added.

A report on a record daily census of 42 was given to the trustees by Mike Dossett, comptroller.

Dossett added, "The 42 census for a month was a record and we also had an average census of 40 for the first quarter of this year which is also a record."

The daily census for March 1982 was given as 38.

The trustees set a one day retreat in May to discuss future programs for HGH.

Bad debts at HGH are running higher than expected, according to Dossett, who explained the trend seems to be the same in other hospitals for the past year.

Hearing officer named in Hill dismissal case

By JUNE M. HEYDT

Frank P. Wittmann III, Pass Christian city attorney, was appointed hearing officer for the non-renewal of contract hearing for Harlin Hill at a special meeting of the Hancock County School Board Tuesday night.

Randall Jones of Pass Christian, who had previously been appointed hearing officer, declined the position because of a conflict-of-interest issue since he has represented Hill in the past.

Joseph Gex, school board attorney, will contact Wittmann to set the date for the hearing, which must be set within 30-days of a request for a hearing.

Also considered for the position of hearing officer at the meeting were attorneys Jimmy McGuire of Gulfport; Joseph H. Benvenuto, Bay St. Louis city judge; and Donnie Waites who has been school board attorney for Wiggins for several years.

Terrell Randolph, superintendent, asked if he could be represented by counsel at the hearing to be paid by the school board.

Gex stated that he contacted the state attorney general's office and was told there is no statutory authority to give the board authority to hire another attorney.

Randolph said, "I think I have good reasons for not using Gex as my attorney because of our close relationship in working together on the board. It would also be in the best interest of Gex."

Randolph added, "I am willing to employ my own attorney at my own cost because I think it is in the best interest of the board and the school district."

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

INVEST IN REAL ESTATE?

QUESTION: I have kicked myself a hundred times for not investing in real estate during the last 20 years. Real estate seems to continue to go up in value, and I wonder if it is too late to invest. What do you think?

ANSWER: Kire C. Mitchell Jr., District Five Constable Candidate.

You are not alone in looking over your shoulder and wishing you had taken 10 years ago what at that time seemed like a high risk. We all have heard stories of how people have made money in real estate. While I certainly am unable to forecast what lies ahead, I do comment on what took place in the past.

Certainly two of the primary reasons for real estate appearing to be such a good investment in recent years are inflation and relatively cheap mortgage money.

For a decade and a half, inflation alone has been a good reason for investing in real estate.

Now, as inflation appears to be slowing down, will investments in real estate be as attractive?

Certainly land in the path of rapidly growing urban areas will be bid up by natural market forces of supply and demand. As the population continues to grow, there should be a continuing increase in demand for farm products and thus the best farm lands.

Demographers tell us that family formation will be high during the next decades and will increase the demand for housing, both owner-occupied and rental. Meanwhile, demand for income-producing properties will depend on the economic well-being of industries using it.

As for interest rate forecasts over the next few years, the job of forecasting is much more difficult. While there are as many predictions as there are people making predictions, I think it is safe to say that we will not see interest rates as low as we saw them 10 years ago and certainly not as low if inflation is not kept under control.

For this reason, investing in real estate will be more expensive. Thus, investors will continue to find attractive real estate investments, but the investor will have to be more selective. The wise investor will look on real estate more for long-term investing and less for "hitting it big, fast."

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P. O. Box 295, University, MS 38677.

MR. ROGERS

Fred Rogers focuses on the feelings that children and their parents have about day care on "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" at 4 p.m., Monday-Friday, April 25-29, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Explaining his choice of subject for the five all-new programs, Rogers said: "Day and night care are on the increase in our society, and many parents have told me that they have strong, conflicting feelings about the care they are providing for their children while they are away. It's a very significant matter any time children and their parents are separated from one another, and these separations are something families really need to talk about."

were elected at the 37th Annual Mississippi Scholastic Press Institute held at The University of Mississippi. The meeting for high school newspaper and yearbook staffers was sponsored by the Ole Miss Department of Journalism and was coordinated by the University's Division of Continuing Education.

Italian cooks count among their many culinary gems those tasty little rice croquettes with a bit of cheese tucked in the center: —, which are known as Croquettes. Al Telefono — Telefono Croquettes because, as you cut them, the cheese is likely to make a long string from one part to the next, much like a miniature telephone wire.

These croquettes with the amusing name are an excellent way to use up leftover rice, even bits of leftover seafood or meat may be added for good measure.

Made simply with the rice and cheese, they're a tasty addition to the main course, and they're good as appetizers when you make them bite size. So, here's:

breadcrumbs. . . and refrigerate for at least a few hours . . . all such breaded foods should be refrigerated before cooking so that the coating doesn't part company with the food while frying.

Fry the croquettes in deep hot fat (say, 380°) until golden brown and crusty. Drain well on paper towels. (Sometimes I do them in just a half inch of oil with good results).

For extra taste and eye-appeal, you may want to add a couple of tablespoons of chopped parsley, and a bit of green onion, chopped, to your croquette mixture. (Four servings).

P. S. Something was lost in the translation to print last column — a whole paragraph... "CUCUMBER SAUCE — Peel and grate a large cucumber, season with finely-minced green onions, add a little sugar and dashes of tarragon and vinegar, blend in enough whipped cream - or yogurt, if you're counting calories - to make a somewhat thick sauce. And if you're a real onion lover, try Onion Cucumber Salad."... (The salad recipe followed in last week's column.

Kergosien flies like a Golden Eagle

KERGOSIEN UP

USM's track team is taking the week off after participating in two meets last week. USM ran in a meet at Mississippi College (non-scoring) and finished fourth in the Jackson State Invitational. In the meet at Mississippi College freshman Patrick Kergosien of Bay St. Louis became the first USM trackster to pole vault over 15-feet. Kergosien's vault of 15-3 gave him first-place finish in the event.

Three meets remain on the Eagles' outdoor schedule. They will run in the South Alabama Invitational April 30 in Mobile, the Southeastern Louisiana Invitational May 7 in Hammond and the Metro Conference Championships in Tallahassee, Fla., May 12-14.

SC JOINS

The Metro Conference expanded recently to eight teams with the addition of the University of South Carolina. This marks the first time in league history that there have been eight members. South Carolina will join Southern Mississippi, Louisville, Tulane, Memphis State, Florida State, Cincinnati and Virginia Tech. The Gamecocks, who have been an independent for the past 12 seasons, will begin competing in the Metro during the 1983-84 season.

LEADING HITTER

Senior infielder Alex Gutierrez of Maracaibo, Venezuela, leads the USM baseball in hitting after 34 games. Gutierrez is hitting .375 and has driven in nine runs. First baseman Reed Allison is hitting .357 and is tied for the lead in home runs with four. Other leading hitters and their averages include designated hitter-catcher Greg Bryant (.348), first baseman Ken Harbuck (.340), second baseman Ben Chancey (.310), infielder David Howell (.304) and catcher Alan Mattox (.301).

Bryant and outfielder Alan Powers are tied with Allison for the team lead in home runs and Bryant paces the club in runs batted in with 25.

The pitching leaders for the Eagles include Earl Laird (earned run average—4.40), Mike Magee (victories—3), and Jody Ortego (innings pitched—61.0 and strikeouts—33).

USM will continue its toughest schedule ever next week when it hosts Alabama for a two-game series. The first game will be Tuesday night at 7:30 at Smoke Harrington Park, while the second game will be Wednesday at 2 p.m. on the USM campus.

HALL OF FAME

Five former football standouts and a longtime faculty chairman of Athletics will be inducted into the University of Southern Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame in ceremonies Saturday night, Apr. 30.

A pair of linebackers of the middle 1960's whom USM fans remember as two of the toughest 'headhunters' in school history, two running backs whose careers paralleled in the middle '60s and a quarterback who led the team in total offense in each of his three years, are the gridders. The ex-linebackers are Ken Avery and Doug Satcher, the former quarterback is Don Fuell, and the ex-runners are J. C. Arban and Bo Dickinson. The sixth inductee is Dr. J. Lloyd Milam, a long-time USM educator-administrator who was faculty chairman of athletics and volunteer academic counselor for more than 25 years.

SPRING FOOTBALL

USM's spring football training will begin winding down next week as coach Jim Carmody and his staff start getting ready for the annual Black & Gold intra-squad game, set for Saturday, Apr. 30 in Roberts Stadium.

USM TENNIS

Both USM's men's and women's tennis teams are getting ready for next week's Metro Conference Championship to be held in New Orleans. This will mark the first time that the Eagle tennis squads have participated in the Metro Championships. The defending champion for the men is Memphis State, while Tulane won the women's title in 1982.

USM slates first Spring Horse Show

The First Annual Spring Horse Show at the University of Southern Mississippi's Equestrian Center will be held Saturday and Sunday.

This show will be the first major event to be held at the newly renovated Center since its opening in February. The Center is located three miles northwest of the USM campus, across from Lake Sehay.

An All-English show, approved by the Louisiana Hunter-Jumper Association, will be held on the 23rd and an Open All-Western show will be held the 24th. "We expect to draw contestants from Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi and Florida," said Vernell Williams, a co-director of the horse show. The show will begin at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday and at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday.

A three-year perpetual trophy will be accumulated during the two days of the show and the contestant may ride more than one horse. The trophy must be won three times, not necessarily three years in a row, to be retained permanently. Ribbons will be given to second through fifth place winners in each category and a trophy will be awarded to first place winners only.

There will be a western saddle raffle at Sunday's show.

For further information about the show, write to USM Equestrian Center, Southern Station Box 5155, Hattiesburg, Ms 39406, or call (601) 266-5406.

PRC golfers headed for state tournament

Pearl River College's golf team placed second in a recent Hinds Junior College Invitational Golf Tournament in Raymond.

Host Hinds was the winner with a team score of 312 while Pearl River registered a 317.

Meridian was a distant third at 331 while Gulf Coast posted a 338 mark. Southwest was in fifth place at 354 and East Central and Co-Lin finished out at 487 and 392.

"This year is the best showing we have ever had," said Herbert Morris, the PRC coach. "We have an excellent chance when we compete in state tournament play Monday and Tuesday, April 25-26 at Meridian."

So far this spring, the PRC men have finished second twice, third twice and fourth once. Seven junior colleges are competing across the state.

Next week the PRC golfers will get a taste of the course to be used in state competition when they compete in the Meridian Junior College Tournament on Tuesday.

In the last meet, Roy Travis shot a 76, two strokes from being the medalist. William McCurley had a 79, Roger Herrin 80, Bryan Amacker 82 and Brad Livingston 84.

Consider the back-to-nature vacations for children, teenagers, and entire families, planned by the National Wildlife Federation.

Travel to some of North America's most scenic vacation areas, and combine outdoor adventure with conservation education and exploration.

The National Wildlife Federation's summer vacations are designed for all ages. "Conservation Summits" are for adults or entire families, "Earth Treks" are for teenagers, and Ranger Rick's Wildlife Camp is for children, 9 to 13 years old.

Conservation Summits, for adults or entire families, are six days of conservation-related activities in unique settings. This year's summits will be held at four locations:

— June 25-July 1, the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina;

— July 3-9, The Rocky Mountains of Colorado;

— July 31-August 6, the Adirondack Mountains of upstate New York;

— August 14-20, the Canadian Maritimes, Antigonish, Nova Scotia.

Summit participants can register for workshops on birds, wildlife, wildflowers, map reading, geology, or flycasting, just to name a few.

Teachers and college students can arrange to receive college credit for these workshops. Free-time activities include tennis, horseback riding, swimming, hiking, sailing, square dancing — depending on your summit choice.

Babysitting and day care facilities are available at most locations. Costs for a family of four range from $850 to $1,150, depending on location and type of accommodation.

Earth Treks, for boys and girls of ages 13-17, are adventures in environmental exploration, backpacking, hiking, and outdoor skills.

Participants will be guided by trained and experienced staff who know and appreciate the outdoors. The cost for Earth Trek is $35.

• The Colorado Rocky Mountain Earth Treks offer teenagers an opportunity to develop backpacking skills and an understanding of the mountains and their life forms.

Cosponsored by the Keystone Science School, these 12-day sessions also offer topics such as programs on astronomy, wildlife biology, geology, forestry, environmental law and Indian prehistory. There are four Rocky Mountain Earth Treks: June 23-July 4; July 7-18; July 21-August 1; and August 4-15.

• The North Carolina Blue Ridge Mountain Earth Treks offer teenagers an opportunity to develop new outdoor and leadership skills and to become more aware of the natural environment. Cosponsored by Wilderness Southeast, these 12-day sessions also offer programs on subjects such as outdoor cooking, camping, wilderness management, folk history and folklore, and stream biology.

There are four Blue Ridge Earth Treks: June 19-30; July 5-16; July 22-August 2, and August 7-18.

Ranger Rick's Wildlife Camp for children of ages 9 to 13 is in North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains where an experienced staff involves young campers in an appreciation, awareness and knowledge of their natural environment.

Recreation activities include swimming, hiking, tennis, fishing, reading and writing. The cost for Wildlife Camp ranges from $375 to $435, depending on the date.

The four sessions are June 12-13 (12 days, $375); July 4-18 (15 days, $425); July 21-August 1 (12 days, $375); and August 4-18 (15 days, $425).

For further information about any of these National Wildlife Federation vacations, call (703) 790-4363, or write to the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. PR2, 1412 16th Street, NW, Washington, DC 20006.

In service

SGT. DUBUISSON
Marine First Sgt. Edwin J. Dubuisson whose wife, Janell, is the daughter of Adriane Cuevas of Pass Christian, has returned from a deployment to Okinawa.

He is an officer assigned to Second Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

His unit spent six months overseas as part of the Marine Corps' unit deployment program. The concept is designed to rotate whole battalions or squadrons at a time instead of individuals at separate intervals. In this way, unit integrity is retained and the actual time spent overseas is shortened.

During the deployment, his battalion conducted a two-week joint training exercise in the Republic of the Philippines with members of the Republic of the Philippines Marine Corps.

SCREENING ROOM ONLY

By David H. Jones

GANDHI
(Critic's Note: "Gandhi" is gone. It has been replaced at area theaters by "Screwballs" or "Spring Break" for some other mindless comedy. I offer this review in the hope that you go, wherever you have to go, to see this truly majestic film.)

At the 55th Academy Awards "Gandhi" swept the competition by winning eight Oscars, including best picture, best director and best actor. Considering the other films nominated, the Academy made the right decision.

Let me say at the outset of this review that I had distinct reservations about attending a three-hour film about an Indian man who espoused non-violence. My fear of epics was not relieved by last year's overly-long "Reds," which won best director for Hollywood's golden boy, Warren Beatty.

On the other hand, films like "Dr. Zhivago," "Bridge Over River Kwai" and "Tess" were all ambitious, great-looking projects that entertained from start to finish.

And also, after the Academy showered "Gandhi" with awards, it became quite obvious that this was the picture to see.

By now everyone has heard the story of Sir Richard Attenborough's labor of love, which took over 20 years to realize. His methodical, quiet direction of "Gandhi," which spans the life of one of the most remarkable individuals of the 20th Century, is impressive. His grasp and consolidation of events never seems misguided or superficial. And the imagery of India, combined with religious chanting and sitar music, provides an almost ethereal effect.

But it is really Ben Kingsley, who masterfully captures the essence of Mohandas Gandhi and, along the way, captivates the audience, that makes this epic work.

The film follows Gandhi from his early career as a young lawyer in South Africa, maturing to a novice spokesman from an emerging India and, finally, to an elder Hindu statesman who appears god-like to his dedicated followers.

Throughout his life Gandhi never raises his voice or hand in anger, while still provoking seething rage in his adversaries. "The job," he says, "of a civil demonstrator is to provoke a response." Provocation is one thing that Gandhi does well and, on numerous occasions, he is jailed for sedition and subversion against the British Empire.

His fasts end revolutions and bring unity to a huge country. As one radio announcer remarks, "This tiny bown man in a loincloth has led 350 million people to freedom."

As the story progresses, Kingsley ages gracefully, both physically and mentally. His character, like the real Gandhi, is complex yet simple, filled with compassion, hope and an understanding for the common man. You can tell it in his eyes.

When compared against the performances of Paul Newman, Dustin Hoffman, Peter O'Toole and Jack Lemmon, it becomes glaringly obvious that there was really no contest in this category. Kingsley simply dominates "Gandhi" for the entire film. And in doing so, Kingsley becomes the first person to win an Academy Award in his film debut.

There are many images to savor in "Gandhi"—the infinite funeral procession; Gandhi speaking to his fellow Indians about "non-violent non-cooperation;" him spinning "homespun" in sparse surroundings; the lush India landscape; the Salt March.

Violent images and passages also linger long after the film is over—Gandhi's followers walking up to the gate at the British Salt Works, arms at their sides, only to be battered to the ground by police with sticks; the massacre of innocent demonstrators; and the epitome of ignorant violence, "General Dye, how does a child, shot with a .303 Lelander, apply for assistance?"

Like last year's best picture, "Chariots of Fire," this British production employs very few American actors. Martin Sheen and Candice Bergen are the most notable American stars. Their parts, while minuscule, are important and both are handled professionally.

John Gielgud and Trevor Howard add class and distinction to this already fine motion picture, although Howard is only on the screen for what amounts to a cameo role.

With Kingsley's intelligent, carefully drawn portrayal of the title character, "Gandhi" is a solemn, serious movie that makes you think.

Afterthought
"Gandhi" won Oscars for: Best Picture; Best Actor; Ben Kingsley; Best Director; Richard Attenborough; Best Original Screenplay; John Briley; Best Cinematography; Billy Williams and Ronnie Taylor; Best Art Direction; Stuart Craig and Bob Laing (art direction); Michael Seaton (set direction); Best Costume Design; John Mollo and Bhanu Athaiya; and Best Film Editing, John Bloom. Whew!

CONTEST WINNER—Ms. Serena Malmstrom accepts a Polaroid camera and half-price airline tickets for two to any city in the United States from Bill Broz, manager of the Big "B" Discount Drug Store in Our Shopping Center, Waveland. Ms. Malmstrom was winner of the store's recent "Be A Pepper" contest.

Businesses offered tax credits for employing youth

Summertime is almost here, and that means young people will soon be out looking for summer jobs.

In an effort to help improve the youth employment picture by giving employers an incentive to hire young people, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 established a new target group in the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program.

qualified summer youth employees.

O. H. Simmons, Mississippi Employment Security Commission executive director, said recently, "This new tax credit can be a real money-saver for Mississippi employers. Through the program, an employer can get a tax credit of 85 percent on the first $5,000 paid to an eligible summer worker. This could amount to a savings of up to $2,550 for each eligible summer youth hired." "Many of the state's employers have realized a 'bottom line' savings in their tax bills by using the credits available through the program in the past, and this new target group promises even more savings," Simmons reported.

"If only 1,000 young people were hired through TJTC this summer, the Mississippi businessmen who hired them could reap up to $2,550,000 in tax credits," he said.

Under the program, a qualified summer youth employee is someone who starts to work after April 3, 1983, works any 90-day period between May 1 and Sept. 15, 1983, had not previously worked for the employer, and is certified by the Mississippi

State Employment Service (Job Service) prior to starting work, Simmons explained.

Employers interested in finding out more about the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit program should contact their local Employment Service office, he added.

Gov. William Winter recently proclaimed April as 'Job Corps Community Appreciation Month' in recognition of support Mississippi communities have given to the three Job Corps Centers in the state.

This month the Gulfport and Batesville Job Corps Centers and the Mississippi Job Corps Center in Crystal Springs are joining a nationwide effort to show their appreciation to the communities surrounding their locations, a job corps spokesman recently reported.

Gulfport Job Corps Center Director Dr. Edward Brennan said recently, "We would like to express our thanks to the Gulf Coast area for providing support and assistance to our center."

"Job Corps is a national program designed to help disadvantaged young people, ages 16-21, who are out of work, out of school, and in need of additional education and vocational training. Through the program, these young people can earn money while learning a skill which will enable them to find satisfying jobs," he explained.

The three Mississippi centers are serving approximately 1,000 young people and offering a wide range of training, the spokesman said. Courses include welding, carpentry, masonry, plumbing, business and clerical skills, nurse aide training, and culinary arts, to name a few. GED preparatory classes are also available to assist corps members in getting a high school equivalency certificate, if they are not high school graduates, the spokesman noted.

The employment service is responsible for recruiting eligible young people and for sending them to one of the three centers or to one of the 22 other centers in the Southeast, the spokesman said.

When a corps member completes training, the employment service provides its complete range of placement services to assist that person in finding a job, the spokesman added.

For more information about the Job Corps program, contact Biloxi Employment Service Office Manager James Goff at 374-4511 or Gulfport Employment Service Office Manager Harold Hooper at 864-1771.

CRICK IN NECK

A spasmodic condition of the muscles in the neck and over the shoulder area occurs when the neck bones have become subluxated, irritating spinal nerves which control muscle function. Aside from being painful, it is often attended with serious complications if not cared for promptly. We find that people who acquire these will usually experience additional neck problems, each more severe than the previous! Falls, drafts, accidents, severe all contribute to this painful condition when the patient has an underlying structural problem. Surgery, traction, clipping of the nerves are last resort measures. The doctor at Chiropractic should be considered first for this condition as the spine and structural muscular balance are the primary concern. First step attention will be to correct the condition painless and avoid permanent damage.

Langenbacker, Power join Governor's reunion

Mary Langenbacker of Waveland and Stephanie Power of Bay St. Louis, were among almost 100 scholars who participated in reunions of the 1981 and 1982 classes of the Mississippi Governor's School, a residential honors program held each summer at Mississippi University for Women. Both are 1982 Governor's School graduates.

Joining the Governor's School graduates, who came from all parts of the state, were more than 50 Governor's School faculty members and others who had worked closely with the school.

Students renewed acquaintances with Governor's School classmates and members of the faculty and participated in a number of other specially planned activities.

Speakers at a Friday convocation were Mrs. Donna Dye of Jackson, who, along with her husband, Lt. Gov. Brad Dye, serves as co-president of the newly formed Governor's School Parents' Association; Sen. John Fraiser of Greenwood, chairman of the Senate Universities and Colleges Committee; and Sen. Jack Gordon, chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

Senators Fraiser and Gordon, along with their colleagues in the Senate and House of Representatives, have been pursuing permanent state funding for Governor's School and have been working for the creation of a residential school for the gifted and talented—the Mississippi School for Math, Science and The Arts. Both gave updates about the progress of these two projects.

Mrs. Dye told Governor's School reunion participants of the progress that has been made with relation to the Parents' Association. She encouraged Governor's School alumni to help make prospective students in the program aware of what the school has to offer. "If you don't know there's a good opportunity out there, there's absolutely no way to take advantage of it," she told the group. "Talk it up and let people now because we really want to reach those students who are eligible."

Mrs. Dye said that one of the aims of the parents' organization is to become a founding donor of Governor's School by raising $10,000 from the association, made up of parents and legal guardians of Governor's School students and graduates.

MUW President James W. Strobel, in welcoming participants back to the W campus said: "You have by your presence in this program and back in your schools made a very distinct statement about who you are and about what you are going to do with your future... you have also made a very definite statement about what you want to do for your state, your region and your nation and certainly for all of society. For that, we are grateful."

Dr. Guy P. Rose Jr., director of Governor's School, said that some 600 students from throughout Mississippi have been nominated to attend the 1983 session of Governor's School.

Governor's School, created and developed by MUW, was established at the Columbus university by Gov. William F. Winter in 1981. Governor's School is designed to provide academic, creative and leadership experiences for a limited number of rising high school juniors and seniors who have demonstrated exceptional ability and achievement in their studies and who show high intellectual and creative potential.

The '83 session will be held June 12-July 1.

Your Public Schools

by Willard H. McGuire, president National Education Association

Values Taught In Our Public Schools

Many religious and spiritual values are taught in today's public schools.

You may be surprised by that statement since some media have carried stories from ultra-conservatives alleging the opposite.

Nevertheless, look at the values that are taught in school: stealing isn't condoned, respect is taught, honesty is demanded, plagiarism isn't tolerated, and the rights of individuals are respected.

Perhaps the most important reason for values education in schools is to help students learn how to make responsible decisions, to solve human problems, to future problem-solvers will have to deal with many issues that affect all of us in the United States and the rest of the world—issues such as increasing technology and nuclear weapons, the pollution of the atmosphere, the likelihood of world hunger, medical advances to prolong life.

Parents are often disappointed when they realize that their children's values only faintly resemble their own and that their own attitudes and lifestyles are not acceptable to their offspring. Despite these difficulties, parents should not become discouraged. Here are some ways parents can explore values with children:

• Try to define your own beliefs and attitudes for your children.

• Talk with your children about their values and your own to discover which ones you hold in common and which are different.

• If your child's school offers courses in values, talk with teachers to find out the purposes of the courses and what the teachers are trying to achieve.

• Discuss with teachers any suggestions you may have about values education; such as a different emphasis or approach.

In these ways you can open up or improve communication with your children and teachers. Improved communication about beliefs and attitudes will mean better understanding for all—children, parents and teachers.

Mississippi State offering teachers free summer terms

Criteria for offering teachers tuition-free classes during the summer terms have been announced by Mississippi State University.

In November of last year, the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning, established a policy permitting universities to offer classes on a tuition-free basis.

The program was designed to assist teachers who wished to upgrade their proficiency or to become certified in the fields of mathematics, science, foreign language, and computer science.

Providing more and better teachers in these critical areas was the board's announced goal in establishing the policy.

"A maximum of six course hours may be taken at MSU under this tuition-free arrangement during each of the two summer terms," said Dr. Robert E. Wolverton, vice president for academic affairs.

"The courses will be open to qualified teachers on a space-available basis, beginning with the 1983 summer semester," he added.

Wolverton said in order to enroll, a teacher must:

— give evidence of a valid State of Mississippi teaching certificate.

— present transcripts of previous college/university study.

— submit a letter of intent, approved by the appropriate superintendent, indicating how the course(s) to be taken will be used to upgrade or meet certification requirements in mathematics or science.

— present grades of C or better in courses taken previously in the area(s) of certificate upgrading.

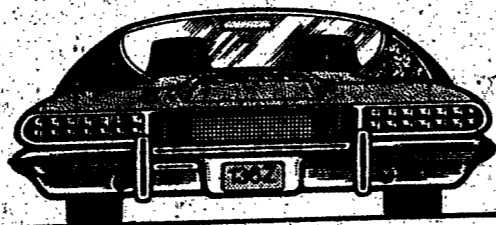

— have fulfilled any prerequisites for advanced classes or have obtained the consent of the instructor(s) to enroll.

— have the necessary documents, along with an application form, mailed no later than May 15 to the Registrar, Mississippi State University, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

During the 1983 semester, a total of two courses will be offered in biological sciences, 11 in chemistry, six in computer science, six in foreign languages, nine in mathematics, and four in physics.

Spring Time is Sting Time

Insects pose greater threat than snakes

Spring time is sting time across the United States, especially in the sunbelt. Insect bites kill at least nine times more Americans than do snake bites, according to Joan Keemer of the National Center for Health Statistics in Hyattsville, Md.

Insects have been killing people for thousands of years. The earliest recorded incident was of a hornet sting causing the death of King Menes of Egypt in 2641 B.C.

Since then, and perhaps before, people have been telling themselves they have nothing to worry about; that they aren't allergic to bees and wasps, and those who are should avoid them.

Both ideas are fallacious. Nobody can be certain he is not allergic to insect stings, and the flying crawling critters are not that easy to avoid.

Drs. Halla Brown of the George Washington University School of Medicine and Harry S. Bernton, of Howard University College of Medicine, reported in the Archives of Internal Medicine that the time between symptom-free stings and those which caused allergic reactions was a little as 24 hours in some cases.

"Many patients had been stung during their youth without symptoms occurring. After a gap of 20 to 30 years without stings, a period of relatively frequent stings (several in a year or two) seemed to predispose the patients to anaphylaxis (severe allergic reaction)," the doctors reported.

Dr. John F. McDonald of the department of entomology at Purdue University, estimates that as many as two million Americans are "at risk to anaphylactic reaction."

Among those two million are thousands of persons who do not consider themselves to be allergic to insect stings. McDonald pointed out the fallacy of that belief.

"Last summer, a friend of mine got two stings on the ankle while he was mowing the yard. Within three to five minutes he collapsed."

"He had no indication he was allergic. He had been stung before by tropical wasps and had no reaction and then this episode almost killed him."

The flying insects are not the only type that can kill. James Russell, fire ant specialist with American Cyanamid, said, "There have been a few reported instances of people dying from reaction following fire ant bites."

The danger from insects is not only hard to assess, it is hard to avoid.

Dr. Ted Brook, an entomologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, estimates that in rural and suburban Mississippi the number of stinging hymenoptera (bees, wasps, and yellow jackets) nests may average between 50,000 and 100,000 per square mile. In most of Mississippi that means there are several nests of stinging insects for each person in a given area.

Similar hymenoptera population estimates have been made for states as far north as Pennsylvania.

McDonald labeled yellow jackets and honey bees as the worst offenders, both in terms of frequency (of stings) and potency.

"In undisturbed forest areas it's very difficult to come across yellow jacket nests, but not so in disturbed forest areas," he said.

"Yellow jackets, especially those species which bother humans, are synanthropic insects," McDonald explained. That means they tend to build their nests in places frequented by humans.

Brook provided several hints for avoiding insects. Stinging hymenoptera are attracted by sweet smells, he explained. People who will be outdoors should avoid sweet smelling colognes during the spring and summer.

Brook also cautioned against leaving empty soft drink containers, watermelon rinds, or other sweet substances in the open. Those who mow lawns can reduce their risk of encountering an angry yellow jacket by keeping the lawn in good shape.

"Yellow jackets are meat eaters, they collect other insects. So, if you have armyworms, sod webworms or other grass worms, the hymenoptera will be attracted to your lawn," Brook said.

Wheel bugs and assassin bugs also employ a cytolytic fluid. These bugs eat other bugs, so where there are noticeable bugs of almost any type, there may be a wheel bug or an assassin bug.

Lights attract the airborne giant water bug, another cytolytic insect. They can be found around service stations and store fronts at night or at ball games where they sometimes fly into extremely hot stadium lights and fall into the crowd where they will bite someone, Brook said.

Residents of the sunbelt need to be cautious of the various venomous caterpillars.

The saddleback caterpillar is about an inch long, light green with brown, dark green, and white saddle markings. The two-inch, black or dark brown buck moth caterpillar has reddish markings. When touched both deliver a sting similar to that of a wasp.

Brook said the lo caterpillar is very light green, "the color of lettuce," and usually about two inches long. It is covered with light green or white, branched hairs that carry venom.

Perhaps the least common venomous caterpillar in Mississippi is the puss caterpillar. "It looks like a lump of fuzz. It is slug shaped with smooth, furry hairs," Brook said. It is amber or tan colored.

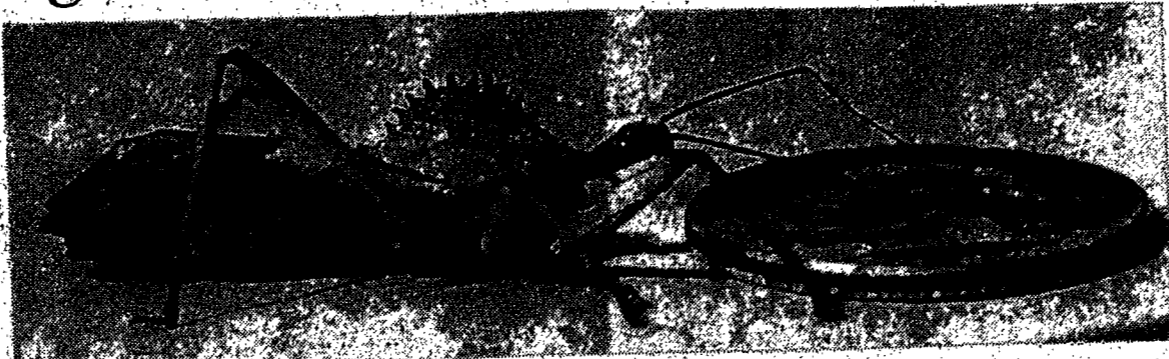

Bites by any of the cytolytic insects should be treated by a physician.

Persons who have a history of asthma, hayfever or allergies should notify their physician in the event of an insect sting. The physician can warn of symptoms to watch for, and can prepare to treat a reaction if it should occur.

Anyone who is stung by an insect should be aware of the symptoms of anaphylactic reaction, which in some cases may not occur until two days after the sting.

Shortness of breath and itching over large portions of the body are also indications of allergic reaction. Brook encouraged anyone who has ever displayed any reaction to an insect bite, and who is going to be in the woods, to carry a sting kit with them.

In the event of an insect sting or bite, attempts should be made to capture or identify the offending insect. If anaphylactic shock occurs, the physician will be better able to provide treatment if the species of insect involved is known.

WHEEL OF DANGER — Mississippi's wheel bug (Arlus Cristatus), compared here with the size of a quarter, is one of many insects in the state that can pose health danger to people. The insect preys on other insects and is found in the woods and around homes throughout the state. When handled it can inflict a bite more painful than a fire ant or a wasp.

Coast support group forming for parents of heart-defective children

Having a child with a heart defect is often a traumatic experience for parents and other family members.

According to Mrs. Richard Irons of Bay St. Louis, the mother of such a child, the family is faced with a bewildering array of questions, emotions and decisions.

In addition to the help received from the child's physician, it can make a crucial difference in dealing with the problems to become educated to all the aspects of the child's condition and the impact it will make on his or her psychological well-being.

It also helps to share experiences and feelings with other parents in the same situation.

To serve these purposes, the Congenital Heart Information Program (C.H.I.P.) was formed in Baton Rouge in 1977 and recently has organized a group in New Orleans.

With the guidance of physicians, nurses and social workers, CHIP offers monthly educational meetings and support programs to help parents develop an emotionally healthy atmosphere in their home so necessary to the child's total growth and normal development.

CHIP provides educational information in such areas as the impact on the family, advances in cardiology and surgery, dental care, catheterization, insurance, preparing the child for hospitalization and surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Irons are interested in finding other local parents of children with heart defects.

Because children living on the coast are often sent to New Orleans, Jackson and Alabama, parents here may feel isolated and may not be aware of this excellent support group.

They feel also that there is a need for informal contact among parents here, in arranging for transportation to the meetings as well as just having someone to talk to who understands.

Interested parents, family and friends are encouraged to contact Mr. or Mrs. Irons, Rt. 1 Box 5C, Bay St. Louis, 487-0411, or to write to CHIP, c/o Mr. and Mrs. Wayne King, 1909 Mehle St., Arabi, LA 70032 to be included on a mailing list.

The CHIP organization in New Orleans has a distinguished Medical Advisory Board, including Morrison C. Bethea, MD, pediatric cardiovascular surgeon; and James L. Reynolds, MD, pediatric cardiologist of the Children's Heart Clinic; John Ochser, MD, chairman, Department of Surgery, and Walter S. Culpepper, MD, pediatric cardiologist, both at Ochser Clinic; Aluizio Stopa, MD, pediatric cardiologist, LSU School of Medicine; Juan Gershanik, MD, director of neonatology; as well as several pediatricians, obstetricians, nurses and social workers.

Meetings have been held on such topics as the school-age child, genetics and tours of catheterization laboratory and surgical units.

The group is interested in receiving input from parents concerning future program needs, meeting times and places and volunteers for committee work.
